Re: Eye Clinic in Marbial, Haiti

To Whom It May Concern:

One again this past month the Jeff Cherubin Domond Foundation were able to organize its 8th medical mission trip to Marbial – a rural community of Jacmel, Haiti; and once more, our committed friend Christine Zacharko, the owner of Glasses To Go... Ltd, who participated in two previous mission trips, came along with her friend Wendy Sirovyak.

They saw approximately eighty (80) people per day and gave out six hundred twenty one (621) pairs of eyewear. It was more than just an eye clinic. Christine gave buttons for their blouses, hats for their heads, and books for school. Education for the health of their eyes was very important to Christine. She taught them how to protect their eyes with hats, sunglasses and safety glasses to avoid problems and prevention. She is passionate, knowledgeable and cares for the people, she truly wants to help the population.

It was nice to see Christine had William, a local boy she met last time when she ran the eye clinic. He came from Jacmel to help her in the clinic and stayed for the week to help and visit with her; just to see her. She has a way with the people; she encouraged them they love her. They remember her when she came back. Christine worked on self-sustainability. She talked about training the local nuns and getting an auto-refractor machine and lensometer to assist the population. Leaving her Snell chart for the nuns and any extra supplies left over from the clinic. The team worked five full days and up than eight hours a day under hard conditions serving people who desperately in need of help; people who have no financial means to provide for themselves.

The foundation wants to thank the Optician Association of Canada, friends and relatives, and in a very special way Christine Zacharko and Wendy Sirovyak who helped making this clinic possible. Thank you, Christine, for your time and dedication. Thank you for organizing the Eye Clinic. We sure could use your help again we would love to have you back.

Sincerely,

DocuSigned by:
